BIOGRAPHY

Jill Lynch has practiced law for over 20 years, focusing on complex business matters, business litigation, and IP litigation. As a previous business owner, Ms. Lynch understands the importance of identifying and mitigating risk for her clients to avoid costly disputes wherever possible.

Ms. Lynch has litigated cases in a wide range of fields, including in the areas of banking and financial services, technology, energy, healthcare, telecommunications, and wireless networking. She has litigated for and against large Fortune 100 and Fortune 500 companies, as well as represented small start-up companies, including in cases involving allegations of breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, patent, copyright, and trademark infringement, theft of trade secrets, negligence, deceptive trade practices, unfair competition, regulatory non-compliance, civil conspiracy, and civil fraud, among others.

Prior to joining CCRG, Ms. Lynch was a Principal at McKool Smith, P.C., where she was named the first female shareholder of the firm. She is licensed to practice law in Texas, Colorado, and Arkansas and has litigated cases in the Northern and Eastern Districts of Texas, the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and state and federal courts throughout the country.

During law school, Ms. Lynch was a member of the national moot court team and an editor of the Arkansas Law Review. She was previously named by D Magazine as one of the “Best Lawyers Under 40” in Dallas, as well as receiving multi-year honors as a Texas Super Lawyers “Rising Star,” which identifies the top up-and-coming lawyers in each state based on peer nominations, evaluations, and independent research.
